

Spanish Fork High School
Resource English 11
2014-2015

- While reading a fictional text, I can define words and phrases that have figurative meanings.
- I can use varied syntax and figurative language.
- I can present a problem, situation, or observation in narrative writing.
- I can introduce a narrator and characters in narrative writing.
- I can establish one or multiple points of view in narrative writing.
- I can define words and phrases with figurative meanings that are used in informational text
- I can define words and phrases with connotative meanings that are used in informational text.
- I can define words and phrases with technical meanings that are used in informational text.
- I can use prewriting strategies to develop and plan before writing.
- I can revise and rewrite to address a specific purpose and/or audience.
- I can edit my writing to fit the expectations of the purpose and/or audience.
- I can summarize a non-fiction text.
- I can conform to the guidelines of MLA style.
- I can produce clear writing in which the idea development is appropriate to genre, purpose, and audience.
- I can produce clear writing in which the organization is appropriate to the genre, purpose, and audience.
- I can produce clear writing in which the style is appropriate to the genre, purpose, and audience.
- I can analyze complex ideas or events.
- I can generally use Standard English capitalization and punctuation correctly.
- I can generally spell correctly.
- I can summarize a fictional text.
- I can analyze the impact of the author's use of the elements of fiction